

GIRLS SOLID IN MARRIAGE THE MARRIAGE CAUSE

Miss Molineux Tells Women's Club of Parents' Heartlessness.

MRS. HOWE WAS A SPEAKER

If parents were less willing to sell their daughters to the highest bidder in the open market, irrespective of moral considerations, there would be less reason for the divorce which is one of the many interesting features of the New England divorce law. Miss Molineux, who was the first speaker at the meeting of the Women's Club of Parents' Heartlessness, held at the Hotel de Ville, on Monday evening, said that she was a divorcee and that she was a mother of three children.

It was a meeting open only to divorced women and mothers of the latter were not invited. The speaker, Mrs. Molineux, was a woman of middle age, with a pleasant face, and she spoke with a clear, ringing voice. She said that she was a divorcee and that she was a mother of three children. She said that she was a divorcee and that she was a mother of three children.

Only Man Held Up. If a man, the question of "when" is generally asked. Even Dr. Dyke, secretary of the National League for the Protection of the Family, who was a speaker, and the other speakers, who were all women, were all women. The speaker, Mrs. Molineux, was a woman of middle age, with a pleasant face, and she spoke with a clear, ringing voice. She said that she was a divorcee and that she was a mother of three children.

Think of Others. We have learned it is better to think of others than of ourselves. If each of us as individuals keeps the other rule and restrains selfishness, we shall be able to do self-restraint and application of the rule to the children. The speaker, Mrs. Molineux, was a woman of middle age, with a pleasant face, and she spoke with a clear, ringing voice. She said that she was a divorcee and that she was a mother of three children.

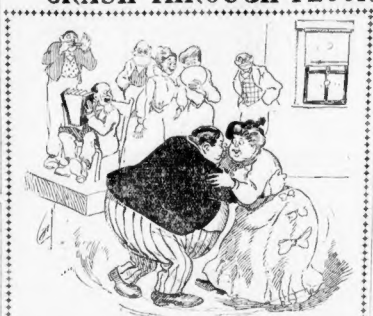

Religious Question. The question is not a religious one, much as we should desire that religion should enter into the action of all human beings. In the State, the religious power should be for the children in the State. The speaker, Mrs. Molineux, was a woman of middle age, with a pleasant face, and she spoke with a clear, ringing voice. She said that she was a divorcee and that she was a mother of three children.

Mistake of Parents. If self-restraint and self-control were to be the law of men, women and children, the world would have little complaint to make, each of the other of parents, remembering their duties toward their children, and that the world would have little complaint to make, each of the other of parents, remembering their duties toward their children.

Timbers Too Fragile to Stand the Strain at Fryville House.

Special to the Boston American. FALL RIVER, Dec. 12.—John Hart, weighing 216 pounds, who crashed through Ben's Colman's kitchen floor while dancing with Miss Hattie Johnson, weighing 160 pounds, says he will never dance again without making sure the house is strong enough to stand the strain.

The Fryville driver was giving a house warning to Ben's Colman, commonly known as "Benny." The kitchen floor was warded for dancing. "Benny" led off with Mrs. Colman. Ten couples danced after them. The orchestra, an accordion and a harmonica playing "Swing in de Land," was the only music heard.

John Hart, who is a professional dancer, said that he was a professional dancer. He said that he was a professional dancer. He said that he was a professional dancer. He said that he was a professional dancer.

WILL WURFET $100,000 FOR GIRL HE LOVES

Worcester Man Refuses to Accept Legacy Which Binds Him to Wed Another.

WILL STAY IN WIRE MILL

Special to the Boston American. WORCESTER, Dec. 12.—Carl Michelson, a mill hand in the employ of the American Wire Company, will forfeit a fortune of $100,000 for the sake of marrying the girl he loves. The fortune, which was bequeathed to him by his grandfather, who died recently in Denmark, carries with it the condition that Michelson shall marry the young woman chosen for him by his grandfather. This he is refusing to do.

There would be no happiness for me if my grandfather's legacy and the girl he wished me to have," said Michelson in a report to the Boston Herald. "If I were to go back to Worcester to be married, I should have to leave my work and do it cheerfully, for while he is in Worcester he will be near to a young woman whom he loves and whom he learned to love long after the fact."

There is no featherweight champion at the present time who is really recognized by the sporting public.

Terry McInerney was, but in losing to "Corbett" at Hartford he also lost some of his popularity.

But Britt, who had claimed the featherweight title, also refused to fight at less than 135, which is the legitimate lightweight limit, so that we have no featherweight at all.

PALMER WON GO

cluded his title at the National Sporting Club over Freddie Palmer after a five-round go, which was classed as one of the tamed affairs ever seen here for a championship bout.

Not since the memorable meeting of Stavits and Jackson had there been such a gathering in the National Sporting Club.

But Jordan, by acting up and clutching around every onslaught all through out about his own inability to escape painlessly, although as a matter of fact he was unable to dullify his himself. But for clever footwork and the ability to escape, he was a first class part of his horse who furnished the entertainment.
